GOURD UPDATES NATIONAL & STATE

The Indiana Gourd Society audit committee met on July 13 and found the IGS books in order and appropriate procedures in place. Many thanks to treasurer Phil Moorhead and to the committee for completing the work in a timely fashion (before the July 15 deadline)!

On July 13 the board met for more than two hours in Thorntown and accomplished all necessary business. Board members remained and the meeting was reconvened as needed to make decisions that facilitated the state show committee's four-hour meeting, also on July 13. The show committee will next meet at 9:30 a.m. on Saturday, September 21, at Thorntown Public Library. Every effort will be made to complete the 2014 show book so that it will be available by the end of 2013. Workshop instructors are currently submitting proposed class offerings to Delaina DeHaven, workshop chair, and have an August 15 deadline. All members are invited to attend board meetings and show planning meetings.

There was extensive discussion on "The Tendril," its content, timeliness, format, and quality. A committee of four (Phil Moorhead, Jesse Glessner, editors Susan Gray and Danna Bishop) was appointed to make recommendations at an October 26 board meeting. The considerations include providing a brief issue every two months with a more detailed issue twice a year. Helen Parker's thoughtful comments on the newsletter and its relevance prompted the discussion. All members and recipients are invited to share their opinions and preferences by sending them to IGS president Karen Niemeyer (president@indianagourdsociety.org or mail to 1217 Wesley Court, Thorntown, IN 46071) for forwarding to the committee.

There are more than 300 members in IGS and half of them prefer to receive a print copy of the newsletter, while the other half have agreed to emailed issues.

It was agreed that the president's column could be brief.

Seed harvest will be February 1, 2014, and seed packaging March 15, 2014, at the Thorntown Public Library.

There are two active Gourd Patches at this time: Lakeshore Gourders (north) and Sugar Creek Gourd Patch (Thorntown, central). A Lafayette-based patch is being re-activated by Verona Clark, and a new patch for the Indianapolis area was approved and will be activated by Diane Werblo.

The IGS president was one of approximately 20 members of the American Gourd Society Board to take part by telephone in a 78-minute board meeting on July 15. Once received, the notes from the meeting will be released to the IGS web site. The Jim Story Award for manipulated, molded, green-cleaned gourds was a major topic of discussion.

The Jim Story Award Committee will be recommending rules for the AGS competition that will probably reflect a $300 first place, $150 second place, and $50 third place awards rather than the present $500 first place award. There were many complimentary comments on Jim and his influence on gourd education; more states will be ordering the video marketed by IGS. Although 11 states had Jim Story manipulated gourd competitions, only two entries were forwarded to the AGS competition. As a result, it was agreed that improved communication is necessary so that states and individuals will be alerted to participate. An AGS competitor must have won a state show, but could have won in some state other than his or her home state and must also be an individual member of AGS. The AGS competition is a three-year process—grow the gourd in 2012, win a state show in 2013, enter into AGS competition by December 31, 2013, and receive results of competition in 2014.

NEEDED BY SEPTEMBER 21—Suggestions for a state show 2014 theme! Two suggestions so far: "It's a Gourd, Gourd World" OR "The Magic of Gourds" and have a magician entertain at the Saturday evening meal and throughout the day.

See you at the State Fair in the Ball State Horticulture Building (August 2-18) and at the IGS Fall Festival and membership meeting October 26 in Crown Point, Lake Co. Fairgrounds. Until then, happy gourdng! The 2013 State Fair theme is "Year of Popcorn."

Prodigy Gourders

By Susan Gray

Hunter and Colton Hood have gourd-ing in their blood and are the prodigy grandsons of IGS Member Jim Ballard.
Hunter, age 12, and Colton, age 9, learned the love of gourds from their grandfather Jim and spend time working with him in the raising and showing of gourds. They know the history of gourds and were quick to say that James Story was a family friend. Both young men help their grandfather with gourd crafts that include the use of wood burners and paint. Hunter said he was not in competition this year due to a surgery, but looks forward to competing again in the Indiana show next year. They also love traveling with their grandfather around the country to various shows and have plans to attend the Kentucky and Pennsylvania gourd shows.

State Show competition in the children's class to show work of other budding gourd prodigies. The photo represents some of the efforts of 28 students from the South-side Elementary School in Hartford City, Indiana, all first time gourd artists.

Do you recognize these two gourd nuts?

Do you recognize who is helping the girl spin?

From a traveling member: I did not think to look for the artist's name, but this is a picture I took of a painting that hangs in the Oklahoma State Capitol Building. I was told that sometimes water had a natural oil slick on it which people would collect and then drink as a remedy for arthritis. [No further information could be found on this picture. ed.]

Lakeshore Gourders - Patch Happenings

Update from Alice Pawlowski

It's a busy season for our patch as most of us are active with some sort of gourd activity. For our June meeting Peggy Miller taught us how to make bouncy bugs using ornamental gourds & elastic cords. Now most of us made cute bugs like a ladybug or bumble bee, but not Ron Pressel. He had these two little odd shaped gourds that before long he assembled into a brown ant. Our patch enjoys these little projects where we can create a gourd project in one meeting. With all the chatting, laughing & carrying on we do, it's a wonder we get our projects done. We opted out of holding a meeting for the month of July as many had other gourd obligations to tend to. Ida and the Pressels will be busy at the LaPorte County fair. Sherry, Kathy, Robbie, Blanche and Alice are busy with craft shows.

The planting season this year seems to be a real challenge. Some of our members have lost their whole crop while others are struggling to keep them going. I tried to grow two plants for the IGS seed bank, but they didn't make it through all this rain. I guess this is a good summer to rest my garden!
